Come spring, the Provence of France comes alive with the sweet seductive scents of blooming wild flowers and local seasonal herbs. World-renowned for their famous lavender, ancient practitioners of Provençal pharmacopia recognized this addictively appealing precious flower as "being good for everything" and have since used it for its homeopathic and aromatherapeutic medicinal properties. I believe nature should be given full credit for her accidental synergy of the pure botanical essences that compose this multi-dimensional fragrance.

Nature's Rx: This product is enriched with floral essences that contain high levels of vitamin C and E and herbal essences that garner intense antioxidant protection from their pure plant proteins. This soap delivers the optimum in skin rejuvenative properties as well as relaxing aromatherapeutic qualities.
