On an early morning walk through the mountain village of Othos, as far as my eyes could see was the panoramic view of fresh hung laundry. My nose filled with their crisp clean scent, complemented by the aroma of Nature's own mountain breeze. Almost immediately, I could feel my mind and body relax, cleansing itself of all stress. The strong heliotherapia of the sun, forced my eyes to bow down, as it lite my inner spirit and warmed my outer body. I watched in disbelief as the clothes seem to play with the early morning sun, while dancing hypnotically to the rhythm of some unheard woodwind symphony.

Who would have thought one of life's daily routines, could have been such good, clean entertainment!
